6. Oliver Lord is a professional actor. He has just completed filming his part in a re-make of "The Club". The film is currently in post-production and is expected to be released nationally in time for the Christmas film season. Motion Pictures Ltd, the company which is making the film, is concerned to ensure that Lord is not also the star of another film that might compete with The Club. In January, it paid $680,000 to Lord on signing a contract. The contract provides that until 31 December this year, Lord undertakes that he will not participate either as an actor or director in any film. Lord remains free to undertake roles on the stage and in TV series (other than feature-length films). What are the consequences for Lord of this transaction in the year ended 30 June?

11. Jon is retired and lives off his superannuation and some savings. At the beginning of June he had $16,420 in his savings account with the NAB. He usually withdraws $100 per week from his bank account to pay for various expenses. He spends $18.00 per week on fares commuting from home to his bowling club, about $35 per week for drinks, coffee and lunches, and the balance on magazines, cigarettes, and so on. His bank statement for June shows:

Date	Description	Deposits	Withdrawals	Balance
1 Jun	Opening balance			16,420
5 Jun	Cash withdrawal		100	16,320
12 Jun	Cash withdrawal		100	16,220
19 Jun	Cash withdrawal		100	16,120
26 Jun	Cash withdrawal		100	16,020
30 Jun	Closing balance			16,020

Ignoring anything that happened earlier in the year, what would Jon's tax position be in the year ending 30 June?

18. Halstroms manufactures refrigerators in Frankston. Its main competitor, Frigidaire Ltd, invented some new technology used in refrigerators in 1978 and was awarded a patent for the technology. While the patent is in place, Halstroms is prevented from using the same technology in its machines. The patent is due to expire next September and Halstroms has been gearing up to use the Frigidaire system once the patent expires. Halstroms has just learned that Frigidaire has lodged an application to have the life of its patent extended (which is possible under the Patents Act). Halstroms has spent $64,800 on lawyers fees trying to defeat this application for an extension. The court case has not yet been concluded. Case Study 1

Montgomery was a partner in a firm of lawyers in Melbourne. The firm occupied premises in Melbourne under a lease which was due to expire in February 1994. In September 1988, AMP which owned the building, informed the firm that it intended to gut the building to clear it of asbestos. Work on the floors occupied by the firm would commence in 1991 and would mean relocating the firm to other floors whilst the work was being carried out.

The firm began thinking about whether to stay in its existing building with all the inconvenience of moving twice, or to relocate to a new building being built at 101 Collins Street. The firm eventually decided to take a lease in the new 101 Collins Street building. As an inducement to entering into a lease in this building the owner of 101 promised to pay the main partners in the firm (including Montgomery) an inducement amount of $29 million. The money was to help the partners meet their costs of buying out their existing lease and fitting out their new premises.

Two documents were then signed. One was an Agreement for Lease between Plurimus Pty Ltd (a company which provided services to the firm) and the landlord. The other was called an Incentive Agreement and was between the partners of the firm and the landlord. The Incentive Agreement contained the following clauses:

The principals are ... partners of the Melbourne firm of Freehill, Hollingdale & Page practising from its offices at 140 William Street and 80 Collins Street, Melbourne (the Partnership).

The [partners] have requested [Plurimus] to enter into certain documents comprising an Agreement for Lease, a Lease and Car Parking Licence and certain other documents with the lessor relating to space in ... 101 Collins Street, Melbourne ... as nominee for the Principals.

The lessor and the [partners] simultaneously with the execution [of this Agreement] are entering into an agreement for lease with respect to the lettable areas of Levels 42, 43, 44, 45, 46 and 47 of the tower building being constructed at 101 Collins Street, Melbourne.

As an inducement for [Plurimus] to execute the said agreement for lease the Lessor has agreed to enter into this Agreement to record certain financial arrangements between the parties with respect to the agreement for lease.

As an inducement for [Plurimus] to enter into the Agreement for Lease, the Lessor agrees to pay to the [partners of the firm] the inducement amount [$29 million].

[The partners acknowledge] that they are liable pursuant to the Transaction Documents to the same extent as if they had executed the Transaction Documents in their own names in lieu of [Plurimus].

Any liability of a [partner] shall be released upon written notification being given to the Lessor of the retirement or resignation of [the partner] from the [firm], but no such release shall release any other [partners].

No less than twenty (20) [partners] shall remain liable hereunder at all times.

The [partners] shall procure any new member of the Partnership to acknowledge in a form acceptable to the Lessor that he or she is bound by this Deed as a Principal as if he had executed it on the date hereof.

What are the tax consequences for Montgomery of receiving his share of the $29 million? You can assume his share was $2 million.

Case Study 2

ICI borrowed $98 million in 1966 from Lender Ltd. The loan carried interest and was repayable in 1996. The repayment of the loan by ICI and the payment of interest was guaranteed by ICI Finance Ltd – that is, if ICI did not pay either interest or the principal on time, ICI Finance would be required to pay it. ICI paid interest as it fell due.

The loan agreement also imposed on ICI an obligation limiting the ratio of liabilities to assets – in other words, ICI always had to have assets worth more than $163 million (that is, the assets of the company had to be more than 60% greater than the $98 million it had borrowed). This obligation placed a serious restriction on ICI's operations and it decided to re-arrange the loan.

In 1986, ICI entered an agreement — the Assumption Agreement. The parties to the Assumption Agreement were ICI, ICI Finance, Lender Ltd and the Melbourne and Metropolitan Board of Works (MMBW). The key provisions of the Principal Assumption Agreement stated:

- ICI would pay $62 million to MMBW. (This was an amount equal to the present value of the $98 million owed on the outstanding loan, given that ICI would not have to repay the $98 million for 10 years). The present value was calculated using the Commonwealth Bond rate.)
- In return, MMBW would “assume in the manner provided in this Agreement the obligations of [ICI] to make due and punctual payment of the principal amount of all [loans] in accordance with Clause 3 of [the loan agreement] ... and [MMBW] shall indemnify [ICI and ICI Finance] ... and keep it indemnified, in respect of such obligations.”

As a consequence of this Agreement, Lender agreed to delete the provisions in the Loan Agreement relating to the financial ratios and the guarantee of the debt given by ICI Finance.

What are the tax consequences to ICI of paying $62 million to MMBW?
